Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 27 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Becoming cloudy overnight. Largely dry with sunny spells developing tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
A dry evening with spells of sunshine and light winds, but becoming rather chilly. Overnight, low cloud, mist and fog patches are likely to return. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Monday:
Cloud gradually breaking up through the morning to leave a largely dry day with sunny spells, however the odd shower is possible later. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Generally rather cloudy, particularly in the mornings with sunny spells possible in the afternoons. Outbreaks of drizzle possible most mornings, with a chance of some showers Tuesday and Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.